Explore New Zealand

Auckland, New Zealand

Auckland is a great base for exploring further afield. Many of New Zealand’s top attractions and most striking landscapes are within a few hours’ drive. Our study abroad students often spend weekends exploring the North Island or fly to the stunning South Island during the two-week semester break.

Our campus and accommodation are in the heart of cosmopolitan Auckland. Placed between the Pacific Ocean and the Tasman Sea, Auckland’s unique geographical position means you can enjoy living close to stunning beaches, untouched forest and tranquil islands. Add to that Auckland’s great urban lifestyle, and it’s clear why Auckland has been ranked third for quality of life.¹

Expand your mind

Make the most of your study abroad experience by choosing subjects and courses that are unique to New Zealand or unavailable at your home institution.

Pacific Studies

Auckland is well known as the largest Pacific city in the world. You can develop an understanding of the Pacific region and its peoples from diverse cultural groups across many different islands, including Samoa, the Cook Islands, Tonga, Niue, Fiji, Tokelau, Tuvalu, and Kiribati.

Our Pacific Studies department, located in the modern Fale Pasifika complex, is a global leader in Pacific research.

Explore this dynamic culture through courses in Pacific performing arts, languages, society, art, literature, history and linguistics.

Māori Studies

Immerse yourself in New Zealand’s unique indigenous culture by taking courses in Māori Studies at the University of Auckland. Building an understanding of diverse indigenous perspectives in our changing global environment will help you develop skills for an international career.

You can choose from different aspects of Māori language, culture, and society to align with your own interests and career goals, and gain a rich appreciation and knowledge of our tangata whenua (indigenous people).

Expand your cultural awareness by studying traditional Māori kapa haka (dance) and waiata (songs), or learn about Māori language and literature, politics, or society and history.

“New Zealand is a destination that many people only dream of visiting – its natural beauty seems almost magical. I decided to pursue my studies at the University of Auckland because of its reputation as the number one university in New Zealand. I was attracted to its cultural diversity, and the variety of courses students can enrol in. Studying abroad can be a daunting decision, but I have come to find a second home at the University of Auckland.

“Studying abroad has strengthened my communication and connection with people from various backgrounds. People from all over the globe come to the University of Auckland to study. The skills I have acquired through my interactions here will allow me to better engage with different companies and clients and push me further in my accounting career. I hope to start my own company, and hearing the stories of successful female entrepreneurs in New Zealand has inspired me to keep pushing towards my goals.”

Kiyla Cooper, Case Western Reserve University in Ohio, USA.

The University of Auckland is one of the best schools in the world for my degree pathway and I loved the idea of travelling alongside my studies. I took papers in Marine Ecology, Conservation Ecology, Fisheries and Aquaculture, and Freshwater Ecology. Part of my conservation class investigated Māori communities and how interconnected they are with nature – I found it fascinating!

“Studying here has allowed me to experience a whole new culture and be exposed to life outside the bubble of my home university. The cultural diversity has made a massive impact on how I study and how I live my day-to-day life.

“I aspire to work as a natural history and documentary filmmaker. Studying abroad has allowed me to develop my skills in order to break into that career, to see the world from a different perspective, and to generate a worldwide network of job opportunities after I graduate.”

Harry Gunning, University of St Andrews, Fife, Scotland.

Innovation and Entrepreneurship

Learn how to test innovative ideas, products or processes, how to finance start-up ventures and how to sell and market new products and services locally and internationally. Develop an innovative mindset and unleash your potential at our business school with triple crown accreditation.

As well as academic courses in innovation and entrepreneurship, there are experiential programmes, events, workshops and speakers for students interested in being part of the University’s entrepreneurial community. Here are some examples of courses you can choose:

Environmental and Marine Sciences

Environmental Science at the University of Auckland focuses on real-world problems and understanding environmental issues caused by human activity. We are dedicated to protecting and restoring natural heritage, minimising human impact and restoring environmental degradation.

Marine Science offers you the chance to learn about many different facets of our coasts and oceans, and opens up a world of opportunities for students who want to study and work in the marine environment. We have field courses that use our excellent research facilities at the Leigh Marine Laboratory, north of Auckland, and our research vessel Hawere.

Screen Tools – Short course

Screen Tools is a hands-on course designed to set you up with the tools you need to launch your career in film, television and digital media industries. Instructed by The Hobbit actor John Callen, this course is ideal for students with an interest in filmmaking or scriptwriting. Over four weeks, students on this course work as a production team to produce a serial drama. Field trips to the Hobbiton movie set and Weta Workshop design and effects studio are included.

“...I knew I wanted to study abroad ever since I entered college because it provided an affordable and safe way to travel without sacrificing my education. Being surrounded by so much vibrant life and access to so many different experiences has been overwhelming in the best way possible.

“...I have really gotten into kickboxing, and although I always leave with bruised shins, I also always leave grinning. I am part of the tramping club and participated on some of their weekend adventures.

“I reached out to one of the research laboratories within my first month here and have been volunteering as a research assistant within The Memory Lab since August. I do a lot of cognitive science research back home so this was an amazing opportunity to experience how research is conducted abroad and learn about techniques I had never had firsthand experience with, such as EEG and fMRI technologies.”

Sadie Dix  studies at the University of Rochester in New York, USA.
